III. SMATV System Profile

In the 1986 edition of CableFile, we have provided you with listings of approximately 170 Canadian SMATV systems and over 300 United States systems. Contained in this profile is information such as equipment manufacturers, subscriber rates and available programming. We have provided as much information possible since our research began in March of '85.

It wasn't easy. To begin with, SMATV operators aren't regulated by franchising laws, so we couldn't find any single record source that lists them. Copyright office records were the sole exception.

And while the larger U.S., and some Canadian, systems were very cooperative, many were unwilling or hesitant about cooperating with our research effort. So we haven't printed all the information we've got. When a system wanted to remain anonymous, we've respected the request. Hopefully next year we'll convince these operators that it's an advantage to be listed.

Our research methodology was pretty simple. We began with the official SMATV trade association list, acquired a few programming and hardware vendor lists and went from there. Along the way we uncovered some surprising sources. But again, we've respected the wishes of operators where they really wanted anonymity.

As a result, most of the Canadian SMATV information we have can't be printed now because many operators are unclear about the legality of their programming arrangement. Presently, the CRTC allows distribution of 17 U.S. satellite services by licensed cable television systems.

But in March 1977, MATV operators were exempted, under certain conditions, from these restrictions. So CRTC-licensed CATV systems are only authorized for the 17 services while SMATV operators are unrestricted. The present battle is over the fairness of these rules.

At this time, we—along with Canadian CATV and SMATV systems—are awaiting the outcome of the Parliamentary hearings.

So we'll have more information in the next volume. We have made every effort to locate all North American SMATV operators and profile their systems. Obviously, our list is incomplete. But it's a great start and we'd appreciate your help in finishing the job. Please let us know of errors or omissions, including additional listings of companies.
